1 The Swedish summertime was one of the things that inspired the textiles and accessories in Helena Gyllensvärd's 'Lisel' range for Ikea, which includes polypropylene rugs (£10). Armed with one of them and solar-powered 'Solvinden' lighting chains (£18) you'll be nicely kitted out for the sunny season. Ring 020 3645 0015, or visit ikea.co.uk.

2 A young and small-scale firm nestled beside the French river that gave it its name, La Loue was born out of designer Pierre Casenove and joiner Letondor Rémy's desire to create contemporary furniture from 'rough materials', like locally sourced raw wood and iron. Shown, from top: 'Bouchon' stool (£208 approx) and 'Cheminot' coffee table (from £529 approx). Ring 00 33 81 83 38 38, or visit mobilier-laloue.com.

3 Painters-turned-textile designers Vicky Putler and Theo Sykes's work 'reflects a love of early Modernism infused with a hint of south-east London'. Shown from top are: 'Ivor' and 'Brockley Cross' (£84 per m each), which are hand-printed in London utilising eco-friendly pigments and natural linen woven in Lancashire. Ring Thorody on 07886 369701, or visit thorody.com.

4 Deborah Osburn founded her e-boutique 'to introduce tile artisans to the world'. Naturally it includes her own work, such as these unglazed porcelain, indigo-dyed 'Waterwork' tiles, from £458.40 per sq m. Ring 001 415 887 9011, or visit cletile.com.

5 Savoir Beds, founded in 1905 by the Savoy Hotel, claims its luxury tailor-made wares 'have become almost as legendary as the stars who have slept in them'. Its reputation has secured a collaboration with interior-design-world celebrities Nicky Haslam, Mary Fox Linton, Jane Churchill and Virginia White. From £6,556. Ring 020 7493 4444, or visit savoirdbeds.co.uk ■
